RENOUNCE NEGROES, REPUBLICANS CRY

Taft Forces, However, Still Ready to Champion Race.

LEADERS AROUSE STRONG OPPOSITION

Many Doubt That Colored Vote Carries Great Weight Throughout the Country.

By JAMES HAY, JR.

CHICAGO, June 13.-When the Taft managers held a conference today and decided to champion the cause of the negro race in the convention next week. in spite of the black race's antagonism to the Secretary of war, they once more broke the set rules of the game of playing politics.

Never before in the history of the country have the blacks treated the Re-publicans with such hostility, such overbearing defiance, such insistent demands. They are holding mass meet-ings every night in various parts of the city, deriding and threatening the Taft organization and adopting resolutions which can be described by no other retary Cortelyou, "Jim Sherman, Conthey will defeat him at the polls.

The negroes explain that they have a tremendous organization, one which they can sway and govern at their will. They claim they can vote the race the way they please in every State in the Union. And they have again and again gone to the Taft managers with the open and unqualified declaration that ing this power to beat Taft at the polls. Threats Disregarded.

In spite of this, the Taft men, ignoring the political slogan that "enemies are enemies and should be exterminated," took their final action today in de-termined to pay no attention to the threats of the blacks, but to keep their interests in mind, and not harm the race the selection of Sherman. in any way.

"The Republican party is not going back on the negro race," said one of the Taft managers. "That's all there

But this decision is not pleasing to all Republicans who are assembled here. In addition to the "Allies," who want Southern representation in the conven-tion cut down, there are Taft men who are irritated and indignant as a result of the spirit the negroes have shown. There are men high in the party who have gone to Frank Hitchcock and beg-ged him to take steps to exterminate the black race politically, to throw it out of the Republican party and to tell it to seek what help it may in the Democratic fold. One of these men, a delegation of the second was to be a second widdle Western gate at large from a Middle Western

Would Abandon Race.

"In my opinion, this convention should be the Waterloo of the negro race. The time has come for us to cast them out.
We have fought their battles and we have gained nothing by it. Why, they have come here and tried to treat us with the same domineering insolence The Taft people, undoubtedly, would they exhibited toward Southern Democrats in the days of the reconstruction the ticket. But it seems that he must period. So far as I am concerned, I will be ruled out of the game. It would invote every time to throw them out, to volve too much sacrifice for him to revolve every time to throw them out, to cut ourselves loose from their membership and to let them struggle on as best they may. I'm done with them."

But Hitchcock and the other Taft managers refuse to follow the demands of the angered delegates. They believe they should stand by the negro race because the Republican party is responsible for the power of the black people. Also, they are convinced that when the heat of battle has cooled, the rank and file of the negroes will remain in the Republican fold.

They believe that the active hostility against Taft has been caused by a few leaders, and that these leaders cannet sway the race as they claim they can. If this proves to be true, Hitchcock will have proved once more that he knows all about politics."

An excellent reason developed today for the reticence which has marked authoritative discussion of the platform. This is, that the platform is by no means in a final form; it doesn't yet represent an ultimatum of the Washington powers, and it is likely to be put into any such definite shape at any time. "Yes," said Crane, "I want to see whether the slaughtering by your amateurs compares at all with the work done by the professionals on the hational committee."

By a singular coincidence at the moment the national committee seated enough Taft delegates to give him the 491 votes necessary to nominate, a placard posted prominently above the elevator in the Auditorium fell with a crash to the floor. Several persons rushed to pick it up, and found that it read, "Cannon Headquarters—second floor."

"Is it like this every night?"
"It is," was the reply, "but this is an inusually big crowd tonight. Come around at midnight and you will see hardly anybody here."

Beveridge looked incredulous and pained. There has not been a cheer raised, and the only sign of enthusiasm has been the promenading of John Williams with the Knox buttons.

"If you had to sum up this conven-tion in a word, what would be the word?" asked A. B. Humphrey, of a visitor to the Hughes headquarters, as, they came down in the elevator of the uditorium Annex. "Uncanny," was the reply.

ountry this summer to meet the "boys" it is the intention of Secretary Taft, ac rding to his present plans, to remain at his home in Cincinnati, which, rather a central point geographically, will be accessible to delegations of visitors who in the natural course of political events will call on him. It was the first intention of the Sec retary to spend a few months at the seashore to prepare for the strenucia campaign, but it was decided that a seashore point would be too inaccessible, and that it would be well to locate where delegations from the Mid-dle States, the doubtful ones where the neavy fighting is expected, could reach him easily.

This was the plan President McKinley adopted with great success. His was in a large measure a front porch campaign. and it is possible that some good work will be accomplished from the Taft front porch in Cincinnati. Taft is not inuch on the barnstorming variety of campaign, moving from city to city, and town to town, making one-night stands, and delivering speeches. As a mixer, though, he ranks away up near the top of the mixers' class, and his friends count as much on the mixing as on the speakin'.

Secretary Taft is now engaged in arranging his work at the War Department for his successor. It is thought that he will resign about July 1, and that Gen. Luke Wright, of Tennessee, will be appointed to take care of the War office.
